

The A'nyêmaqên Mountains (34° — 35° N, 99° — 101° E) are 200 km long and 60 km wide. They form the eastern extension of the Kunlun Range where the Huanghe River makes a ring-shaped turn. The A'nyêmaqên Mountains, also called the Jishi Mountains, at 6,282m a.s.l., has two sister peaks at 6,268m and 6,090 m.