

pits dug in the firn zone of the glacier at 500-600 m a. s. l.; they revealed that towards the end of the polar summer the temperature of the upper firn layers, at least to 15 m depth, equals  $0^{\circ}$ .